MANY ATTEND SERVICES.

Funeral of Rev. Samuel B. Pettigill at Saxtons River.

Saxtons River, Oct. 26.—The funeral of Rev. Samuel B. Pettigill, former editor of the Rutland Herald, St. Albans Messenger, Oregonian, Tacoma Ledger and other papers, who died on Friday last, was held Sunday afternoon at the home of his niece, Miss Fanny and Helen Pettigill. The services were conducted by Rev. George F. Chapin, pastor of the Congregational church, assisted by Rev. P. B. Penock of Grafton, Vt. P. Q.
Merrilland sang, "Waiting at the Gate" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The bearers were Charles Frost, H. A. Davis, John H. Albee of Saxtons River and Adin Gulver of Grafton. Burial was in the Saxtons River cemetery.

Among the large number present were the two sons, Harry Pettigill of Washington and Samuel B. Pettigill, jr., of the Yale law school, Judge A. A. Hall of St. Albans, Dr. J. S. Hill and William Putnam of Bellows Falls, Vt., W. E.
I. Walker, P. Q. Merrilland and Adin Gulver of Grafton.

THE ABUSE OF STONE.

Quarriesmen have learned Not to Stun It Nor to Use It When Green.

Stone as a building material has been the victim of a whole lot of ignorance and carelessness. It is only a few years since the chief thing asked of a quarry-man was to knock the biggest piece of stone out of the ground at the least cost.

Immense blocks were broken loose by tremendous charges of explosives, and then these masses of rock were split into sizes convenient for handling. If the stone showed no visible cracks or starts and held together under the cutting and dressing, it was thought to be in prime condition.

Quarriesmen and builders were intensely surprised if stone handled in this way went to pieces and disintegrated in a few years after having been set in a building. Until a more serious study of economic geology was made, it was not recognized that heavy blasting or even severe blows from sledges had a tendency to weaken the cementing material that holds together the rock grains or crystals in any stone.

Now no quarriesman would think of placing on the market a stone that had been stunned. Even in continental Europe, which is always headmaster in the ordering old methods and adopting modern improvements, this lesson has been learned.

It was formerly the practice to blast out stone, even in marble quarries. The effect upon the delicate materials, especially such marbles as were brecciated or with elaborate tapestried patterns (reused, of course, by the mingling of different elements) was readily to be imaged. This is why the old marble quarries of Europe present remarkable spall banks, the debris often preventing necessary development work.

Slowly but surely the wasteful powder man is being displaced by the wire saw which cuts the stone from its native bed without injuring its texture. In the lightest, and the channeling machine, which cuts the stone into rectangular blocks with the minimum of waste without stunning the stone.

Still another great improvement has come in the knowledge of the necessity for a proper season of stone. While the presence, to a greater or less degree, of interstitial water or sap in all stone has been recognized for a century, the part that it plays in the weathering of stone was unknown until comparatively recently.

The quarryman and stoneworker found that a stone fresh from its bed and full of quarry water was easy to work and that it grew harder when the sap had dried out. Hence stone was frequently cut and set in a building before it had seasoned and thus fell a victim to frost.

Now the architect and the builder know the danger in certain varieties of green stone and provide against it in their specifications. No one expecting a satisfactory and durable job would think of using unseasoned timber, and similar safeguards are called for in the use of stone.

Much of the defective stonework of the past was caused by a neglect of a fundamental principle in stone masonry, the need to set all stone of a markedly stratified or laminated formation on its natural bed. As such stone splits most readily along the plane of stratification, the easiest way was to split it up for this use and set it upright in the wall; but this quality of cleavage naturally caused it to scale off as moisture and frost got a lodgment. While a disregard of this precaution is responsible for a large portion of the defective stonework of the last fifty years, the technical magazine Stone says that this error has played no part in recent work.

A Wise Precaution.

Not long ago some Utah farmers had occasion to organize a corporation, and desiring to avoid the cost of a lawyer's services, they drew up their own ac-ticles of agreement. Among the provisions was the following: "The annual meeting of the company shall be held on the second Saturday of July in each and every year, except when the same falls on a Sunday or a holiday."—Law

ABOUT THE STATE

Harold Williams, the twelve year old janitor of the West Berlin schoolhouse, killed a fox last week with a stone.

The village improvement society of Middlebury has purchased about 600 bulbs of various plants which will be planted in various parts of the town this fall.

The work of turning the West Branch at Stowe has been completed and the building of the state highway is nearly completed. The amount expended in the building of this road is in the neighborhood of $1500.

The town library of Springfield has just received a bronze medal commemorative of the 100th anniversary of the New England society in the city of New York. The medal was executed by Tilfany & Co., and is a beautiful piece of work.

J. William Powers of Burlington, an employee of the Burlington Free Press, had a bone in one ankle broken as he was playing football Saturday afternoon during a game of football. He was taken at once to the Mary Fletcher hospital where the bone was set. He is reported as doing well.

The first ceremonial session of Orion Grotto, Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm was held Friday night at Rutland with an initiation of ten candidates. A delegation of 40 from Glen Falls and 18 from Whitehall witnessed the work. Orion Grotto is the only one in Vermont, although the order is very strong in New York state.

The first session of the Howard Relief Sewing School was held in Burlington Saturday afternoon. This plan has just been started in that city and about 170 children attended the first session. The children will have competent teachers and cloth and sewing materials will be furnished to them. The school will meet every Saturday afternoon.

Springfield has landed another new industry within the last month by inducing a brass and metal foundry company to locate in that town. Henry M.
Wright and Paul Luther, of Hartford, Conn., will carry on the business. Their factory will be commenced right away.
The company expects to start in business on a small scale and employ only a few men and enlarge their force as their business expands.

A GENEROUS OFFER

The Red Cross Pharmacy Will Refund Your Money if Parisian Sage Doesn't Banish Dandruff.

Pretty strong talk, perhaps you'll say, but it's honest talk, every word of it, because if The Red Cross Pharmacy was not absolutely certain: if they did not know from actual results obtained, they could not make such a generous offer.

Parisian Sage, which can now be obtained in every town in America, is also guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching scalp.

It is the ideal, delightful, rejuvenating hair dressing that makes hair grow in abundance. Parisian Sage is a prime favorite with women, because it keeps the hair brilliant and fascinating, is daintily perfumed, and is not sticky or greasy.

The price for a large bottle is only 50 cents at The Red Cross Pharmacy, who guarantees it. Sold everywhere, or direct, at charges prepaid, by the American makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Heurlepie.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of dandruff and to prevent baldness by feeding the germ which causes it with Castile Soap. Castile Soap is the original and only genuine pure and simple substance which formulates the principal ingredients of most so-called hair dressers.

Newbro's Heurlepie is successful because it attacks and kills the parasite which feeds on the hair roots. It
called hair dressers.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c.
